Can you find “Gerunds” in the following text?

I needed a bottle of water so I headed for the nearest supermarket that I could find. A boy was talking to the owner of the store about working there as a delivery boy. He was trying to convince him that he needed help. Not having a job can actually make you sick, especially if you need some money fast.

Write a couple of paragraphs. Try to use gerunds in your writing:

Noun Clause

A dependent, or subordinate, clause contains a subject and a verb or verb phrase but does not express a complete thought. As a result, it cannot stand alone as a sentence. Dependent clauses can function either as noun clauses, adjective clauses, or adverb clauses.

A noun clause is a dependent clause that acts as a noun. Noun clauses begin with words such as how, that, what, whatever, when, where, whether, which, whichever, who, whoever, whom, whomever, and why.

Noun clauses can act as:

1. Subjects:
    a. What Alicia said made her friends cry.
    b. What Megan wrote surprised her family.
    c. How the boy behaved was not very polite.

2. Objects:
    a. She didn't realize that the directions were wrong.
    b. He didn't know why the stove wasn't working.
    c. They now understand that you should not cheat on a test.

3. Subject Complement
    a. Carlie's problem was that she didn't practice enough.
    b. Harry's biggest achievement at school was when he became class president.
    c. Darla's excuse for being late was that she forgot to set her alarm.

4. Objects of a preposition.
    a. Harry is not the best provider of what Margie needs.
    b. Josephine is not responsible for what Alex decided to do.
    c. Elle is the owner of that blue car parked outside.

5. Adjective Complement
    a. Her family was happy when Meg returned home.
    b. The child is sad that his stomach hurts.
    c. I'm excited that my best friend is coming to visit.

Here are some more examples:

1. I don’t know where he lives.
2. I don’t know what he wants.
3. I don’t know why the baby is crying.
4. I don’t know who she is.
5. I don’t know whose cellphone it is.
6. I don’t know when the match begins.
7. I don’t know how a computer works.
8. Where he lives is more like a castle than a house.
9. What he does makes his family feel ashamed.
10. Who you spend your time with defines your future.
11. How she plays the piano is just amazing.
12. Why Mr. Gates divorced his wife was shocking.

Adjective Clause

An adjective clause is a dependent clause that, like an adjective, modifies a noun or pronoun. An adjective clause begin with words such as that, when, where, who, whom, whose, which, and why. An essential (or restrictive) adjective clause provides information that is necessary for identifying the word it modifies. A nonessential (or nonrestrictive) adjective clause provides additional information about the word it modifies, but the word's meaning is already clear. Nonessential clauses are always set off with commas.

Essential:

1. The art class that Lucas takes focuses on design.
2. The teacher who helped me with my math problems is Mr. Jackson.
3. This is the park where we played.

Nonessential:

1. The house on the left, which belongs to Nicole, is up for sale.
2. Max, who is Marissa's older brother, just got back from a trip to Jamaica.
3. Michael Jackson, who is often called as the king of pop music, died in 2009.

Here are some more examples:

1. He is the man who I play tennis with.
2. The bad weather is the reason why I decided to drive instead of walk.
3. The car which is parked near the store is my father's car.
4. Mia is the person whose family owns a horse ranch.
5. This is the park where we can walk the dogs.
6. Do you remember the time when we almost missed the swim meet?
7. Guillermo went to the studio where he takes photo editing lessons.
8. Monday is the day when I have my doctor's appointment.
9. Chocolate, which many people adore, is fattening.

Conditional Sentences Type 2

If Clauses – Type 2 is used to express dreams, unreal situations and things that are unlikely to happen. In other words, The condition specified in the clause is not actual but is a condition that is currently being imagined. Although the verb is used in the past, we use type 2 when talking about present time or now.

Form

If clause	main clause	example
Simple past	would + infinitive	If I studied, I would pass the exams
Simple past	could + infinitive	If I studied, I could pass the exams.
Simple past	might + infinitive	If I studied, I might pass the exams.

Examples

1. If I had money (if clause), I would give you (main clause). (but I don't have money)
2. If she knew the answer, she would win the prize. (but she doesn't know the answer)
3. If I didn't smoke, I would be healthy. (but I smoke so I am not healthy)
4. If he had enough experience for the job, the boss could hire him. (but he doesn't)
5. If I had your phone number, I would call you. (but I don't have your phone number)
6. If you came to the party, we would have a lot of fun. (but you don't come to the party)
7. If I were a rich man, I would buy a home like palace. (but I am poor)
8. If I could speak English well, I would look for a job in foreign companies. (but I can't)
9. If he had time, he would study well for his exam. (but he doesn't have time)
10. If it didn't rain, we would go on a picnic. (but it is raining)

1. The sentence can begin with an if clause or a main clause. If the sentence begins with an 'if clause', put a comma between the if clause and the main clause.

Examples:

- If I went to Paris, I would see the Eiffel Tower. / I would see the Eiffel Tower if I went to Paris.
- If you had an invitation card, you should go to the party. / You should go to the party if you had an invitation card.

2. If you want, we can use modals in both 'ıf clause' and 'main clause' or you can use modals only in one part.

Example:

- If I could speak English very well, I would look for a job in foreign companies.

- 3. In 'If Clauses Type 2', we usually use 'were' which is past form of 'to be' instead of 'was' although the pronoun is 'I, he, she or it'.
  Examples:
- If I were you, I wouldn't marry with him.
- If she were ill, she couldn't attend the meeting.
- If it weren't snowy, I would go out.

4. In Type 2, one or two of the clauses can be negative
Examples:

- If I didn't wake up early, I wouldn't be aware of what happened.
- If she didn't need us, she wouldn't talk to us.

5. Using Type2 in questions
Examples:

- What would happen if humans disappeared?
- What would we do firstly if a fire broke out?
- Would you cry if he left you?

6. Would can be written short as 'd'. You can always use this abbreviation.
Example:

- If you lost time, you would (you'd) miss the bus.

Conditional 3

The type 3 conditional refers to an impossible condition in the past and its probable result in the past. These sentences are truly hypothetical and unreal, because it is now too late for the condition or its result to exist. There is always some implication of regret with type 3 conditional sentences. The reality is the opposite of, or contrary to, what the sentence expresses.

- If I had worked harder I would have passed the exam. (But I didn't work hard, and I didn't pass the exam.)
- If I had known you were coming I would have baked a cake. (But I didn't know and I didn't bake a cake.)
- I would have been happy if you had called me on my birthday. (But you didn't call me and I am not happy.)

Form:

if clause	+	main clause	example
Had+ pp	+	would + have + past participle	If I had studied, I would have passed the exams.
Had+ pp	+	could + have + past participle	If I had studied, I could have passed the exams.
Had+ pp	+	might + have + past participle	If I had studied, I might have passed the exams.

Here are some more examples:

1. If it had rained, you would have gotten wet..
2. You would have gotten wet if it had rained.
3. You would have passed your exam if you had worked harder.
4. If you had worked harder, you would have passed your exam.
5. I would have believed you if you hadn't lied to me before.
6. If you hadn't lied to me before, I would have believed you.
7. If I had worked harder I might have passed the exam.
8. You could have been on time if you had caught the bus.
9. If I had known you were in hospital, I would have visited you.
10. I would have bought you a present if I had known it was your birthday.

- Both would and had can be contracted to 'd, which can be confusing if you are not confident with type 3 conditional sentences. Remember 2 rules:

  1. would* never appears in the if-clause so if 'd appears in the if clause, it must be abbreviating had.

  2. had* never appears before *have so if 'd appears on a pronoun just before have, it must be abbreviating would.

Carla admits, If you had told me what was in store for me when I was young, I would have said, ˜It couldn't be done. I'm not strong enough. But now I'd say, don't change a thing. I don't want anything different.

"At the same time, a lot of parents worry the breakup is partly their fault because of the way they raised their kids," Christine says. "'If only they wouldn't have fought in front of them. Present Perfect

The present perfect is used to indicate a link between the present and the past. The time of the action is before now but not specified, and we are often more interested in the result than in the action itself.

We use present perfect to talk about:

1. Actions started in the past and continuing in the present

- They haven't lived here for years.
- She has worked in the bank for five years.
- We have had the same car for ten years.
- Have you played the piano since you were a child?

2. When the time period referred to has not finished

- I have worked hard this week.
- It has rained a lot this year.
- We haven't seen her today.

3. Actions repeated in an unspecified period between the past and now.

- They have seen that film six times
- It has happened several times already.
- She has visited them frequently.
- We have eaten at that restaurant many times.

4. Actions completed in the very recent past (+just)

- Have you just finished work?
- I have just eaten.
- We have just seen her.
- Has he just left?

5. When the precise time of the action is not important or not known

- Someone has eaten my soup!
- Have you seen 'gone with the wind'?
- She's studied Japanese, Russian, and English.

The concept of "unspecified time" can be very confusing to English learners. It is best to associate present perfect with the following topics:

TOPIC 1 Experience

You can use the present perfect to describe your experience. It is like saying, "I have the experience of..." You can also use this tense to say that you have never had a certain experience. The present perfect is NOT used to describe a specific event.

Examples:

- I have been to France.
  This sentence means that you have had the experience of being in France. Maybe you have been there once, or several times.
- I have been to France three times.
  You can add the number of times at the end of the sentence.
- I have never been to France.
  This sentence means that you have not had the experience of going to France.
- I think I have seen that movie before.
- He has never traveled by train.
- Joan has studied two foreign languages.
- A: Have you ever met him?
  B: No, I have not met him.

TOPIC 2 Change Over Time

We often use the present perfect to talk about change that has happened over a period of time.

Examples:

- You have grown since the last time I saw you.
- The government has become more interested in arts education.
- Japanese has become one of the most popular courses at the university since the Asian studies program was established.
- My English has really improved since I moved to Australia.

TOPIC 3 Accomplishments

We often use the present perfect to list the accomplishments of individuals and humanity. You cannot mention a specific time.

Examples:

- Man has walked on the Moon.
- Our son has learned how to read.
- Doctors have cured many deadly diseases.
- Scientists have split the atom.

TOPIC 4 An Uncompleted Action You Are Expecting

We often use the present perfect to say that an action which we expected has not happened. Using the present perfect suggests that we are still waiting for the action to happen.

Examples:

- James has not finished his homework yet.
- Susan hasn't mastered Japanese, but she can communicate.
- Bill has still not arrived.
- The rain hasn't stopped.

TOPIC 5 Multiple Actions at Different Times

We also use the present perfect to talk about several different actions which have occurred in the past at different times. Present perfect suggests the process is not complete and more actions are possible.

Examples:

- The army has attacked that city five times.
- I have had four quizzes and five tests so far this semester.
- We have had many major problems while working on this project.
- She has talked to several specialists about her problem, but nobody knows why she is sick.

❖ Ever

The adverbs ever and never express the idea of an unidentified time before now(have you ever visited berlin?)'Ever' and 'never' are always placed before the main verb (past participle). Ever is used:

- ✓ In questions: Have you ever been to England? Has she ever met the prime minister? Haven't they ever been to Europe? Haven't you ever eaten Chinese food?

- ✓ With 'the first time: It's the first time that I've ever eaten snails. This is the first time I've ever been to England.

❖ Never

Never means at no time before now, and is the same as not ..... Ever: (i have never visited berlin)
Be careful! you must not use never and not together

~~I haven't never been to Italy.~~
I have never been to Italy.

❖ Already

Already refers to an action that has happened at an unspecified time before now. It suggests that there is no need for repetition.

I've already drunk three coffees this morning. (= and you're offering me another one!)
Don't write to john, I've already done it. Has she finished her homework already?

- ✓ Already can be placed before the main verb (past participle) or at the end of the sentence:

I have already been to Tokyo.
I have been to Tokyo already.

❖ Yet

Yet is used in negative statements and questions, to mean (not) in the period of time between before now and now, (not) up to and including the present. yet is usually placed at the end of the sentence.

Have you met Judy yet?	I haven't visited the state gallery yet
Has he arrived yet?	They haven't eaten yet

❖ For, Since

Using the present perfect, we can define a period of time before now by considering its duration, with for + a period of time, or by considering its starting point, with since + a point in time.

- ✓ FOR + A PERIOD OF TIME for six years, for a week, for a month, for hours, for two hours

I have worked here for five years.

- ✓ SINCE + A POINT IN TIME

Since this morning, since last week, since yesterday, since I was a child, since Wednesday

I have worked here since 1990.

Been and Gone

In this tense, we use both 'been' and 'gone' as the past participle of 'go', but in slightly different circumstances. We use 'been' (often when we talk about life experience) to mean that the person we're talking about visited the place and came back.

- I've been to Paris (in my life, but now I'm in London, where I live).
- She has been to school today (but now she's back at home).
- They have never been to California.

We use 'gone' (often when we are talking about an action with a result in the present) to mean that the person went to the place and is at the place now.

- Where's John? He's gone to the shops (he's at the shops now).
- Julie has gone to Mexico (now she's in Mexico).
- They've gone to Japan for three weeks (now they're in Japan).

Here are some more examples:

1. She has lived here for twenty years.
2. We have taught at this school for a long time.
3. Alice has been married for three months.
4. They have been at the hotel for a week.
5. She has lived here since 1980.
6. We have taught at this school since 1965.
7. Alice has been married since March 2nd.
8. They have been at the hotel since last Tuesday.

Several major things around the house look like they are about ready to break. And it doesn't take more than a few minutes of reading the newspaper to work up a major worry about wars and disasters around the world.

They found a program that places volunteer parents in a residential facility where they care for sibling groups who have been unable to find foster or adoptive families. Debbie and Paul's role is to provide a family structure for children who might other-wise feel no one cares about them. The children live in dormitory rooms with Debbie and Paul next door, but there are no fences around the facilities.

Present Perfect Continuous

The present perfect continuous is used to show that an action started in the past and has continued up to the present moment. The present perfect continuous usually emphasizes duration, or the amount of time that an action has been taking place.

Present Perfect Continuous Forms

The present perfect continuous is formed using has/have + been + present participle.

- Statement: You have been waiting here for two hours.
- Question: Have you been waiting here for two hours?
- Negative: You have not been waiting here for two hours.

Present Perfect Continuous Uses

USE 1 Duration from the Past Until Now

We use the present perfect continuous to show that something started in the past and has continued up until now. "For five minutes," "for two weeks," and "since Tuesday" are all durations which can be used with the present perfect continuous.

Examples:

- They have been talking for the last hour.
- She has been working at that company for three years.
- What have you been doing for the last 30 minutes?
- James has been teaching at the university since June.
- We have been waiting here for over two hours!
- Why has Nancy not been taking her medicine for the last three days?

USE 2 Recently, Lately

You can also use the present perfect continuous WITHOUT a duration such as "for two weeks." Without the duration, the tense has a more general meaning of "lately." We often use the words "lately" or "recently" to emphasize this meaning.

Examples:

- Recently, I have been feeling really tired.
- She has been watching too much television lately.
- Have you been exercising lately?
- Mary has been feeling a little depressed.
- Lisa has not been practicing her English.
- What have you been doing?

Remember that the present perfect continuous has the meaning of "lately" or "recently." If you use the present perfect continuous in a question such as "Have you been feeling alright?", it can suggest that the person looks sick or unhealthy. A question such as "Have you been smoking?" can suggest that you smell the smoke on the person. Using this tense in a question suggests you can see, smell, hear or feel the results of the action. It is possible to insult someone by using this tense incorrectly.

Adverb Placement

The examples below show the placement for grammar adverbs such as: always, only, never, ever, still, just, etc.

- You have only been waiting here for one hour.
- Have you only been waiting here for one hour?

Present Perfect and Present Perfect Continuous

We use both of these tenses for finished and unfinished actions.

The present perfect simple can be used (often with 'since' and 'for') to talk about unfinished actions that started in the past and are still true in the present. It's often used with stative verbs:

- I've known John for three years.

The present perfect continuous can also be used (often with 'since' and 'for') to talk about unfinished actions that started in the past and are still true in the present. (Of course, we don't use the present perfect continuous with stative verbs):

- She's been living here for three years.

Sometimes there's really no difference in meaning between the two tenses. This is especially the case with verbs such as 'live', 'work' and 'study':

- They've lived in London since 2004.
- They've been living in London since 2004.

- I've studied French for ten years.
- I've been studying French for ten years.

- He's worked at the company since 2009.
- He's been working at our company since 2009.

Sometimes, there is a difference in meaning:

1: The present perfect continuous can be used to emphasize the length of time that has passed. The present perfect simple is generally neutral:

- They've been waiting for hours! (This emphasizes the length of time).
- They've waited for hours. (This doesn't emphasize the length of time).

2: On the other hand, the present perfect simple is often used when we're talking about how much or how many. This isn't possible with the present perfect continuous:

- She's drunk three cups of coffee this morning.
- She's drunk at least a liter of coffee today.
- (NOT: ~~she's been drinking three cups of coffee this morning~~).

3: The present perfect continuous often focuses on the action itself, while the present perfect simple focuses on the fact that the action is completed:

- I've been reading the book you recommended. (I'm enjoying it, but I'm not finished).
- I've read the book you recommended. (I've finished it, so we can talk about it).

This difference is often used to talk about different kinds of results in the present. The present perfect simple is used when the action is finished, and the result comes from the action being finished:

- I've eaten dinner, so let's go out.
- She's done all her homework, so she can relax this evening.
- I've made a cake. Would you like some?

The present perfect continuous is used when the result comes from the action itself. It doesn't matter if the whole action is finished or not. The result is often something we can see, hear, smell, or feel:

- I've been eating dinner, so there are plates all over the table.
- She's been doing her homework, so she's tired.
- I've been making a cake, that's why the kitchen is such a mess.

4: Finally, the present perfect continuous can be used to emphasize that something is temporary:

- She's been running a lot recently. (She doesn't usually do this).
- Usually I study at home, but I've been studying in the library for the last week.

Here are some more examples:

1. I have been learning my lessons.
2. He has been feeling much better.
3. Dad has been reading all morning.
4. Yes, I have been following the developments closely.
5. I have been working so hard for my kids.

Can you find "present perfect continuous" in the following text?

While the ordeal has been draining and difficult for all of them, it has brought Lauren and Jennifer closer to each other and to their mother. Lauren says, "As sisters, Jennifer and I have never been closer than when we decided to do this. And our relationship with our mother has really gone past mother/daughter into a true friendship."

Parenting has been going on since the beginning of time. There are an awful lot of experienced voices out there—probably a number of them within your own extended family. These people are resources you should use whenever you need help or wish to talk about something. But, for all the expertise in the world on the subject of raising a family, you are the world's biggest expert on your family.

Passive Sentences

When the doer of the action in the sentence is unknown or not important, we either don't mention the agent or put it at the end of the sentence. These sentences are called "passive".

Here are some examples:

Active	Passive
1. He is washing my car.	My car is being washed.
2. Someone stole my wallet.	My wallet was stolen.
3. This factory produces cars.	Cars are produced in this factory.
4. People buy video games.	Video games are bought.
5. They make 1000 movies a year.	1000 movies are made each year.
6. They release tens of albums each year.	Tens of albums are released each year.

Form

to be + past participle (to be changes to am, is, are, was, were, be)

Sentences are in the active voice. Change them into the passive voice.

1. He usually buys the tickets.
2. We booked the flights.
3. He opened the bottle easily.
4. She cleans my shoes.
5. They arrested the burglars.
6. He wrote the note.
7. They washed the car.
8. She found the key.
9. He sold his coin collection.
10. We started a new system.
11. Someone stole his car.

12. They used the towels.
13. We turned on the TV.
14. She served tea at 4.
15. The rain flooded the camp.

When there are two objects in an active sentence, there are two possible active sentences and two possible passive sentences.

The professor gave the students the books.

The students	were given	the books.	(by the professor).
The books	were given	to the students	(by the professor).

Before the wreck of Titanic was discovered, it was assumed the ship would be in good condition, as it wasn’t thought life could survive at the extreme depth, cold, and pressure. When the wreck was found, the wooden deck had been eaten away by worms, populations of ratfish lived in the ruins, and the iron hull was being consumed by bacteria.

How a toy car is made

In the factory, they use a computer to plan the exact shape of the car. They then feed this computer program into a machine, and produce a plastic prototype. Then they produce the actual toy cars in a factory abroad. As far as construction is concerned, they make the bodies of the cars from plastic. They add small electric motors to the cars, and then they paint them. They also attach license plates. Quality control inspects the cars and then they wrap them and pack them into cardboard boxes. They ship the cars to Britain.

Perfect Modals

Could have/couldn't have

This denotes past ability, how you had this option in the past but now the choice no longer exists (or that something wasn't possible in the past, even if you had wanted to do it).

- I could have gone to Africa when I was 16.
- You could have been a rockstar, You were really good at playing the guitar.
- She couldn't have stolen the bag, she was in another town.

Should have/shouldn't have

These denote past obligation, something that you had to do in the but you didn't.

- He should have gone to the bank earlier, he knew he had to pay the bill today.
- She shouldn't have touched their property, that wasn't the right thing to do.
- We should have gone to see her when we had the chance.
- I shouldn't have said that to Mr Brown, I wasn't thinking about it.

Would have/wouldn't have

These show a past conditional construction, a condition that existed in the past but does not anymore.

- I would have bought the dress if I'd had enough money.
- I wouldn't have gone to the party if I had known she would be there.
- She would have been so sad if she had seen that picture.
- We wouldn't have been so angry if they had just apologized.

May have/may not have

These constructions denote past possibility, they usually describe something about which you are not quite certain.

- I may have left it at home, but I'm not sure.
- I may not have told him to go to the store earlier.
- We may not have been so lucky if things had happened differently.
- I may not have been honest with him.

Might have/might not have

These constructions denote past possibility, they usually describe something about which you are not quite certain.

- I might have gone to the party if I hadn't had something to do.
- I might not have been so angry but I was having a bad day.
- She might have left it at home.

Must have/must not have

This denotes past probability, something of which you are nearly certain but of which you are not quite sure.

- I must have been really drunk last night because I don't remember much!
- She must not have heard me properly because I didn't say that.
- He must have been having a bad day because he's not usually like that.
- We must not have been thinking straight because that was a silly thing to do.

Past Perfect

The past perfect is a verb tense which is used to show that an action took place once or many times before another point in the past. Read on for detailed descriptions, examples, and present perfect exercises.

Past Perfect Forms

The past perfect is formed using had* + past participle. Questions are indicated by inverting the subject and had. Negatives are made with not.

- Statement: You had studied English before you moved to New York.
- Question: Had you studied English before you moved to New York?
- Negative: You had not studied English before you moved to New York.

Past Perfect Uses

USE 1 Completed Action Before Something in the Past

The past perfect expresses the idea that something occurred before another action in the past. It can also show that something happened before a specific time in the past.

Examples:

- I had never seen such a beautiful beach before I went to Kauai.
- I did not have any money because I had lost my wallet.
- Tony knew Istanbul so well because he had visited the city several times.
- Had Susan ever studied Thai before she moved to Thailand?
- She only understood the movie because she had read the book.
- Kristine had never been to an opera before last night.
- We were not able to get a hotel room because we had not booked in advance.
- A: Had you ever visited the U.S. before your trip in 2006?
  B: Yes, I had been to the U.S. once before.

USE 2 Duration Before Something in the Past (Non-Continuous Verbs)

With non-continuous verbs and some non-continuous uses of mixed verbs, we use the past perfect to show that something started in the past and continued up until another action in the past.

Examples:

- We had had that car for ten years before it broke down.
- By the time Alex finished his studies, he had been in London for over eight years.
- They felt bad about selling the house because they had owned it for more than forty years.

Although the above use of past perfect is normally limited to non-continuous verbs and non-continuous uses of mixed verbs, the words "live," "work," "teach," and "study" are sometimes used in this way even though they are NOT non-continuous verbs.

IMPORTANT Specific Times with the Past Perfect

Unlike with the present perfect, it is possible to use specific time words or phrases with the past perfect. Although this is possible, it is usually not necessary.

Example:

- She had visited her Japanese relatives once in 1993 before she moved in with them in 1996.

MOREOVER

If the past perfect action did occur at a specific time, the simple past can be used instead of the past perfect when "before" or "after" is used in the sentence. The words "before" and "after" actually tell you what happens first, so the past perfect is optional. For this reason, both sentences below are correct.

Examples:

- She had visited her Japanese relatives once in 1993 before she moved in with them in 1996.
- She visited her Japanese relatives once in 1993 before she moved in with them in 1996.

HOWEVER

If the past perfect is not referring to an action at a specific time, past perfect is not optional. Compare the examples below. Here past perfect is referring to a lack of experience rather than an action at a specific time. For this reason, simple past cannot be used.

Examples:

- She never saw a bear before she moved to Alaska. Not Correct
- She had never seen a bear before she moved to Alaska. Correct

ADVERB PLACEMENT

The examples below show the placement for grammar adverbs such as: always, only, never, ever, still, just, etc.

Examples:

- You had previously studied English before you moved to New York.
- Had you previously studied English before you moved to New York?

I can't believe I (get) _____ that apartment. I (submit) _____ my application last week, but I didn't think I had a chance of actually getting it. When I (show) _____ up to take a look around, there were at least twenty other people who (arrive) _____ before me. Most of them (fill, already) _____ out their applications and were already leaving. The landlord said I could still apply, so I did.

I (try) _____ to fill out the form, but I couldn't answer half of the questions. They (want) _____ me to include references, but I didn't want to list my previous landlord because I (have) _____ some problems with him in the past and I knew he wouldn't recommend me. I (end) _____ up listing my father as a reference.

It was total luck that he (decide) _____ to give me the apartment. It turns out that the landlord and my father (go) _____ to high school together. He decided that I could have the apartment before he (look) _____ at my credit report. I really lucked out!

Can you find “past perfect” in the following text?

Diagnosed with advanced testicular cancer at the age of 25, doctors gave Lance Armstrong less than a 40 percent chance of recovery. Tumors were discovered in his lungs and stomach along with multiple lesions on the brain.

His biking career was over or so everyone thought; but no one counted on the indomitable belief Armstrong had in himself and the lessons which his mother, Linda Walling had taught him.

One of the first things that he did was to acknowledge the disease that had captured him in its talons and learn everything he could about it. He devoured books, resources and found help in support groups with people going through similar difficulties.

“Make every obstacle an opportunity”, “Always work hard and good things will happen” and “Don’t believe it when other people say you can’t”.

Future Continuous

Future continuous has two different forms: "will be doing " and "be going to be doing." Unlike simple future forms, future continuous forms are usually interchangeable.

FORM Future Continuous with "Will"

[will be + present participle]

- You will be waiting for her when her plane arrives tonight.
- Will you be waiting for her when her plane arrives tonight?
- You will not be waiting for her when her plane arrives tonight.

FORM Future Continuous with "Be Going To "

[am/is/are + going to be + present participle]

- You are going to be waiting for her when her plane arrives tonight.
- Are you going to be waiting for her when her plane arrives tonight?
- You are not going to be waiting for her when her plane arrives tonight.

REMEMBER: It is possible to use either "will" or "be going to" to create the future continuous with little difference in meaning.

USE 1 Interrupted Action in the Future

Use the future continuous to indicate that a longer action in the future will be interrupted by a shorter action in the future.

Examples:

- I will be watching TV when she arrives tonight.
- I will be waiting for you when your bus arrives.
- I am going to be staying at the Madison Hotel, if anything happens and you need to contact me.
- He will be studying at the library tonight, so he will not see Jennifer when she arrives.

Notice in the examples above that the interruptions (marked in italics) are in simple present rather than simple future. This is because the interruptions are in time clauses, and you cannot use future tenses in time clauses.

USE 2 Specific Time as an Interruption in the Future

In USE 1, described above, the future continuous is interrupted by a short action in the future. In addition to using short actions as interruptions, you can also use a specific time as an interruption.

- Tonight at 6 PM, I am going to be eating dinner.
  I will be in the process of eating dinner.
- At midnight tonight, we will still be driving through the desert.
  We will be in the process of driving through the desert.

REMEMBER

In the simple future, a specific time is used to show the time an action will begin or end. In the future continuous, a specific time interrupts the action.

- Tonight at 6 PM, I am going to eat dinner.
  I am going to start eating at 6 PM.
- Tonight at 6 PM, I am going to be eating dinner.
  I am going to start earlier and I will be in the process of eating dinner at 6 PM.

USE 3 Parallel Actions in the Future

When you use the future continuous with two actions in the same sentence, it expresses the idea that both actions will be happening at the same time. The actions are parallel.

- I am going to be studying and he is going to be making dinner.
- Tonight, they will be eating dinner, discussing their plans, and having a good time.
- While Ellen is reading, Tim will be watching television.
  Notice "is reading" because of the time clause containing "while."

Wish

Wish + (that) + past simple:

We can use 'wish' to talk about something that we would like to be different in the present or the future. It's used for things which are impossible or very unlikely.

- I wish that I had a big house (I don't have a big house, but it's a nice idea!).
- I wish that we didn't need to work today (we do need to work today, unfortunately).
- I wish that you lived close by (you don't live close by).
- I wish that John wasn't busy tomorrow* (he is busy, unfortunately).

(*In formal writing, you will see 'were' instead of 'was' after wish. This is correct, but it's also fine to use 'was', in the same way as with the second conditional.

- 'I wish I were rich' or 'I wish I was rich'.)

We also use 'wish' with 'could' to talk about things in the present or future that we would like to be different. In this situation, 'could' is the past simple of 'can'.

Of course, we use 'can' to talk about ability - if we know how to do something or not. For example, 'I can speak Spanish' or 'I can't drive'. We also use 'can' to talk about possibility - if things are possible or not possible. For example, 'we can't come to the party tonight' or 'John can help you clean up'. We use 'could' with 'wish' to talk about ability and to talk about possibility.

- I wish that I could speak Spanish (but, unfortunately, I can't speak Spanish).
- I wish that I could drive (I can't drive).
- I wish that we could go to the party tonight (unfortunately, we're busy so we can't go).
- I wish that John could help you clean up (John is at work, so he can't help).

We don't usually use 'wish' in this way for things that are really possible in the future. Instead, we use 'hope'.

- I hope that you pass your exam (NOT: ~~I wish that you passed the exam~~).
- I hope that it's sunny tomorrow (NOT: ~~I wish that it was sunny tomorrow~~).
- I hope that Julie has a lovely holiday (NOT: ~~I wish that Julie had a lovely holiday~~).

Wish + (that) + would:

On the other hand, we use 'would' with 'wish' in a little bit of a special way. It's generally used about other people who are doing (or not doing) something that we don't like and we want that person to change. It's not usually used about ourselves, or about something which nobody can change though, exceptionally, we do use it about the weather.

- I wish that John wouldn't eat all the chocolate. (John does usually eat all the chocolate and I don't like it. I want him to change his behavior!)
- I wish that the neighbors would be quiet! (They are not quiet and I don't like the noise.)
- I wish that you wouldn't smoke so much! (You do smoke a lot and I don't like it. I want you to change this.)
- I wish that you wouldn't work late so often.
- I wish that it would stop raining!

We don't usually use 'would' when there's no feeling that we want somebody to change their behavior.

- NOT: ~~I wish that tomorrow would be a holiday.~~ (Instead: I wish that tomorrow was a holiday.)
- NOT: ~~I wish that I would work harder.~~ (It's strange to use 'wish' + 'would' about yourself, as you can change your behaviour if you don't like it!)

Wishes about the past

Wish + (that) + past perfect:
We can use 'wish' with the past perfect to talk about regrets from the past. These are things that have already happened but we wish they'd happened in a different way. This use of 'wish' is very similar to the third conditional.

- I wish that I had studied harder at school. (I didn't study hard at school, and now I'm sorry about it.)
- I wish that I hadn't eaten so much yesterday! (But I did eat a lot yesterday. Now I think it wasn't a good idea.)
- I wish that the train had been on time. (But unfortunately the train was late, and so I missed my interview.)

Other uses of 'wish'

Wish + to + infinitive:
We can use 'wish' with the infinitive to mean 'would like'. This is very formal. We don't usually use a continuous tense with 'wish' in this case.

- I wish to speak to the headmaster. (This means the same as 'I would like to speak to the headmaster'.)
- I wish to go now.

Wish + object + to + infinitive:
In the same way, we can use 'wish' with an object and an infinitive.

- I do not wish you to publish this article.
- I wish these people to leave.

Wish + somebody + something:
This is used mostly in set phrases.

- I wished him a happy birthday.
- They wished us Merry Christmas.
